London to see the Queen.

To make her curtsy and "bob" to the

Her Majesty may be said to have put the final touch to any aspirant in society. She may then be considered as having a cachet that distinguishes her apart from all other mortals who have not been so favored. There is a worldly halo all about her. She is "finished."

But before having achieved this ultra-smart distinction there are two intensely important matters for consideration and for really grave and long thought. One is the perfecting of the curtsy or the extremely humble and low obsequious to the throne, a little act in itself of hardly a minute's duration, but one that demands assiduous drill and is fraught with social peril. For fancy if one should make a nervous slip—it's only a pin-point from the sublime to the ridiculous. A sickness of mortification has more than once been the portion of a presenter who got mixed up with her voluminous skirts and was unable to

"Love Me (Capt.) Little, Love Me Long!"

LOVE'S see-saw, which has given many a painful jolt to those who risk its caprice, has at last proved kind to one of the richest and most beautiful of Southern widows, Mrs. Lee Jordan, of Macon, Ga., and kinder yet to the neglected sultor who hoped on in silence.

Readers of this newspaper will remember the rude awakening of this lady two years ago from rosy dreams, in which Senator Don Luis Corcia, Nicaraguan Minister to this country, appeared as the loved central figure. They will recall that still more rude was the awakening of Don Luis, who, in having to give up his rich and beautiful promised bride, witnessed the sacrifice of his diplomatic and social position.

Throughout the South, especially, sympathy was mainly with Mrs. Jordan. For the sake of her feelings, although she at once isolated herself in her beautiful Macon home, society tabooed the whole subject and strove to forget it.

Suddenly the charming widow has become again the object of pleasant romantic interest throughout the country, for a handsome and brilliant son of her own State has announced himself as her accepted suitor.

This is Captain John D. Little, formerly Speaker of the Georgia House of Representatives, and more than a possibility for the Governorship of that State. Ten days ago Captain Little was in New York City, where he enjoys a fine social status. But he seemed strangely preoccupied, declining flattering invitations and otherwise inciting his friends to inquire solicitously whether anything was wrong.

"On the contrary, everything is right," Little answered the Captain.

Georgia His Elysium.

get back to Georgia?"

The day before he took the fastest train

This is almost the first mention publicly of Mrs. Jordan's name since the news came from Macon two years ago last November that she had broken her engagement with Senor Corea and shut herself up in her town house, refusing all but None but a woman Southern born and bred can fully understand what sufferings of mind and heart the Corra affair cost this proudest beauty of old Georgia stock. A Miss Ilah Dunlap, daughter of an old Macon family, she married Colonel Lee Jordan, of equally distinguished lineage. He was seventy years old and a millionaire.

When Colonel Jordan died his widow inherited all his property. Her father's death had already made her a very rich woman. She visited friends in Washington, where in the Spring of 1904, she met the diplomat, Mr. C. C. Corva, Nicaragua, and the youngest member of the diplomatic corps at that rank at the capital.

Though of a swarthy complexion, Corva was a very handsome young man and accomplished in all social graces. He was a favorite of the diplomatic corps and enjoyed the friendship of President Roosevelt and Secretary Hay. From the first it was plain to all that he was a very beautiful Georgia widow, and when it became apparent that she preferred his company to that of any other, the distinguished suitors society at the capital snubbed agreeably upon the affair, voting it a proper and a brilliant match.

A Successful Wooing in Paris.
When in June Mrs. Jordan called for Europe with her brother Corea, lost the smallest possible amount of time in following her. They met in Paris and soon the announcement was cabled over that they were engaged. Indeed, they went shopping together, making purchases for their future home in the Nicaraguan Legation, near Dupont Circle.

Returning from Europe to Mason, Mrs. Jordan made no secret of her preparations for marriage with Don Luis. All her friends knew it to be a love match—on her side, at least. The announcement of the date set for the marriage, November 1, of that year, filled Georgia and Washington society with favorable anticipations.

In the midst of all this rejoicing Don Luis's fiancée received a terrible shock. The Mayor of Macon, accompanied by three members of the City Council—all men of influence in Macon society—called on Mrs.

Jordan relative to letters they had received derogatory to her betrothed husband. The men came directly to the point, saying:

Major came directly to the point, saying:

"The man that you are about to marry is the Nicaraguan Minister, Senor Corea, and he is a negro."

What more terrible charge could be brought against the fiance of an aristocratic Southern woman? The lovely Mrs. Lee Jordan nearly fainted. Then with flashing eyes she passionately defended her lover.

They showed her a letter signed W. H.

Silva, which said further that the Nicaraguan Minister was already a married man with children. They even declared that, if necessary, they would forcibly prevent a daughter of their State and city so much beloved and respected as was the bride from marrying any man.

Mrs. Jordan's answer was to dismiss her visitors and then to telegraph Senator Corcoran for she knew he would understand: "Let the wedding be at once."

She wrote fully, begging him not to come to Georgia. She would go to him. But the Minister answered proudly: "No, your family must investigate these charges. To them and to you I must be proved innocent. Then only will I conceal

Mrs. Jordan remained in her Macon home. It was said that members of her family took Corea at his word—that detectives had been sent to Nicaragua. After a while came reports, somewhat vague, that the charges were true, that the handsome Minister was a protégé of the despotic President Zelaya—in fact, his creature, raised from the humblest beginnings, and that a brother, now dead, had had the appearance of a full-blooded negro.

Mrs. Jordan continued silent and invisible to all but a few old Macon families. For the sake of appearance she entertained in her own most exclusive set, and these persons understood that her marriage had been postponed to the following Easter.

But already they felt that Senor Corea's case was hopeless. Mrs. Jordan was reflecting. They knew what the inevitable result of those reflections would le. When a woman of the old Southern aristocracy reflects upon the fact that there exists even the slightest suspicion that her betrothed is not of pure white blood, the marriage is already impossible.

Readers, there was a constant trickle of maddening newspaper paragraphs. She could not escape such items as these:

"It is learned that President Zelaya is not munificent in his treatment of his Ministers, Even Corea, his favorite, receives only $300 a month, and has no money nor property of his own."

"A pretty senorita of Guatemala is extremely anxious to see Senor Corea for reasons which every one there knows."

"Senor Corea's second rate Paris furniture for his bridal mansion is being brought over on the instalment plan."

The Beaut

"Beautiful Mrs. Hah Dunlap Jordan, of Georgia, has been on to Washington and found out that Minister Corea is only a third rate diplomat."

From her reflections and perusal of these paragraphs Mrs. Jordan at length gleaned black silk gloves with untrimmed arms. They are very useful and always look well for street wear and travelling. They are so difficult to get that many women find it necessary to buy the black silk arms and attach them to sport black gloves.

Where one wishes lace in a glove the face may be added around the middle of the glove and a cuff of lace sewed around the top. This treatment will convert a short, plain glove into a long, fancy one, and will be much cheaper than buying the lace-trimmed gloves with which

Trimmed gloves with which the shops are flooded. These lace-trimmed gloves are not as smart as are the plain ones, and it is problematica whether they will become so. Undressed kid is in high favor for long gloves. It makes the hand appear smaller, but suede gloves never wear as well as do those of glaze kid, and the girl of limited means will be wise to avoid them. In buying gloves it is well to get colored gloves, with relation to the shoes and hats to be worn with them, since some tints cannot be matched at all or even 'harmonized' with in other materials.

The Multitudinous Little Muscles of the Face
and the Way They May Be

Trained to Make Facial Expression Beautiful.

How the Muscles of the Mouth Are Stretched in Laughter.

By MISS COZETTE KELLER.

ON the fourth page in this series showing speech and a we have facial expression, a most attractive subject as well as a most important one in the study of how to make the most of yourself.

The incredible power of expression, both bodily and facial as an aid to personal advancement in practical, every-day life, is mentioned to a great extent by the vast majority of people, and it is, indeed, but few who realize or appreciate its importance in the full.

The face, like the body, is the mirror of the soul faithfully reproducing its impressions. Every feeling, expression is but the almost tangible image of an inner thought.

Taken as a whole the face is replete of an infinite variety of expression. Its aid must not be overlooked by the actor when seeking to portray by the mirror what he feels, the various moods or play upon people's emotions by his face from his features, burying it in his manuscript, will miss but a superficial impression upon his audience.

Multitude of features is indeed as greatly to be desired as facility of articulation.
Greatest of the features to aid mental expression is the eye, and, rightly, indeed, have eyes been termed the windows of the soul? By the glance the speaker invites and holds attention, at the same time marking the direction of the thought as well as indicating the position of objects in the mental picture.

The careful always to keep the eye in touch with your audience, allowing the gaze to pass from one to the other until each feels that your conversation was intended particularly for him.

The Value of Expression in Business.

Naturally the facial muscles are involuntarily, responding instantly to the call of the emotion regardless of the will, as we see in the face of the child. How quickly he is blushed with hope, excited time or joy, disheartened with hope, deblanched with fear, drawn with suffering or clothed with mercy or cunning. Thus as he grows older he discovers that it is not always to his advantage that his companion should know his thoughts, and by degrees he learns to control those muscles and suppress the outward visible pictures of his emotions. Then the years of inaction render the muscles not only unresponsive, but immobile and impossible to employ, and the only way to regain the natural pliancy is by exercises of each individual muscle. Thus when at last you have succeeded in restoring the normal flexibility you will find that they have become both involuntary and voluntary, responding unconsciously to the emotion experienced as well as to the command of the will, enabling you to simulate an emotion you do not experience, but which excites sympathy, and to hide an emotion that you do not wish to betray.

Honestly signifies the feeling by means of physical expression the long before empression, the fourth page in this series showing speech and a

It is a well-known fact that the face is the most important part of the body. It is the first thing that catches the eye, and it is the last thing that is remembered. Therefore, it is of the utmost importance that the face should be kept in the best possible condition. The most effective way of doing this is by using a good face powder. One of the best face powders on the market is Lablache's Face Powder. It is made of the finest materials and is of a pure white color. It does not clog the pores of the skin, and it does not irritate the skin in any way. It is also very durable, and it will last for many hours. It is a must-have for every woman who wants to keep her face in the best possible condition.

In these points are inserted the embroidered decorations seen at the bottom of the skirt and finished with a pleated edging of Valenciennes lace. The top of the gown skirt is concealed by the finger-arms which quite cover the top of the first main bodice. The bodice also covers the sleeves, which are short and puffed and finished with a raised puff slightly over a fitted elbow cuff of Valenciennes lace. A narrow lace edge the gown in the back and sides and back of the skirt, alternating with two wide panels on each side, of irregular set in lace, in a very beautiful and effective decoration. The top of each lace decorated panel is a narrow raised band extending from the waistband a third of the way down. It is bordered by a wide lace gullion of the sort which forms a point around the bottom of every raised band. A big piece of the same transparent lace, in an irregular shield shape, is inserted below this point and traversed across its upper portion by a narrow band of shirring. Beneath this large decorated a crescent of lace is decorated with medallions of heavy lace and gathered across under the bottom of the lace shield. A broad, crosswise inserting below the lace shield that meets those of the crescent. The upright pieces of lace are inserted in the lower portion of the bodice and sides of the skirt. A-shaped piece of lace secures the fullness of the blouse at the waist and gives a prettiness of the gown. A bit of shirred lace is introduced into this lace at the bottom of the skirt and also to dress.

Small lace motifs are inserted here and there in the lace-wrought panels, having the appearance of detached bits of the large lace drapery floating off into the sheer lace of the dress. A rather narrow lace edge the gown in the back and sides and back of the skirt, alternating with two wide panels on each side, of irregular set in lace, in a very beautiful and effective decoration. The top of each lace decorated panel is a narrow raised band extending from the waistband a third of the way down. It is bordered by a wide lace gullion of the sort which forms a point around the bottom of every raised band. A big piece of the same transparent lace, in an irregular shield shape, is inserted below this point and traversed across its upper portion by a narrow band of shirring. Smart lines upon which to build wedding gowns are the primary and unchangeable principles. Simple, girlish, with airy and waits also form smart wedding dresses. In such cases the girlish are high and of the material of the dress except in the case of very soft fabrics, when the girlish are of soft satin. A new note in veils has been struck this season. The very newest thing in wedding veils is of chiffon of very thin quality, bordered with narrow lace applied on edges. This lace border is usually quite tiny and always irregular in outline. Soft, and is often preferred to tulle as a veil, and for country weddings I think the chiffon veil particularly appropriate. It is always becoming, and the effect is very soft and cloudlike. Tulle, on the contrary, is unbecoming to many brides. Methods of wearing the veil differ. There is no set rule about this. The matter is entirely one of personal feeling. Some brides prefer the veil over the face while others like it pushed aside. Either way is correct. It is usual now to wear the wreath more across the front of the collar and to drape the veil more and bunch it less, but the arrangement of veil and wreath should be in the style most becoming to the wearer. In every instance the new Summer wedding gown is made without a collar and in short sleeves. Some of the new dresses are cut in small Dutch necks and some with long arrangements of the drapery on the bodice is considered smart. In practically all gowns, however, the waist line is long, slender and unbroken by sharp fringing effects as possible. Designs wrought in little lace ruffles are very smart and attractive, indeed, and can easily be made upon the surface of any sort of wash material. No matter how elaborate the workmanship of wedding gowns, all try to strive at the purpose of simplicity in general effect and beauty.

CHAPTER XIII.

NOW Tige had never eaten at the first table in his life, so he was delighted one morning when I invited him to come to the dining room and have breakfast with me. We jumped up on a chair beside me, and I put a napkin around his neck. Of course it isn't good form in polite society to put your napkin around your neck, but Tige and I are not polite society, besides he can't keep his napkin on his lap. Tige ate his breakfast like a well-bred dog, which he is. There ARE well-bred dogs, you know, and even well-bred hogs. They are the ones who are well fed and well kept and expensive. Then there are well-bred people. Those are the ones who are well read and who have kind and gentle manners.

After breakfast we went for a walk. Tige had never noticed before how many of the horses had their tails docked. As usual, when he did notice it he wanted to know all about it. I explained that it made the horses look more stylish. But he thought it was cruel to cut off those beautiful tails that a kind Providence had put there to keep off the flies and to look beautiful. Of course I said, "Beauty is often sacrificed to what is called 'style'." See those cruel curls, reins that people put on the horses to make them hold their poor heads up and irritate their mouths."

"It doesn't seem to be fashionable to leave things as God made them," said Tige. "No," said I, "that's what the matter with our fashionable churches."

Well, Tige met another kind of a dog he had never seen before. It was a French poodle who was out walking with a French nurse. Tige had on his new collar, so he felt as well as any one. He and the poodle eyed each other, and finally waited up to each other and exchanged a few polite greetings in dog talk. I'll bet there were no dogs at the Tower of Babel, for they never got their languages mixed up.

"HOLD STILL NOW TIGE"

"ONE OF THOSE FUNNY FRENCH POODLES."

I found that on the next Spring when we went to Europe, for Tige talked to every dog he met in Europe.

Now when we had finished our walk and gotten back to the house he had a scheme. She had decided to take me down town and have my picture taken, and she was waiting for us to return.

Now I never knew how much laughing you could do at a dog. Ma thought it would be nice to have my picture taken because I hadn't had a picture since I was a little bit of a boy. She didn't intend to have Tige's picture taken, but decided after we got there that it would look cunning to have us together, as we were such good friends. Besides a little boy and a little dog look so natural together. Boys and dogs are both so kind of honest and free from fancy affectation that they seem to fit.

Tige had never been in a photographer's place before, and it interested him. I knew I would have a lot of questions to answer before we got out of there, and I did. He wanted to know what that little dark room was for, and I told him it was where they developed things. He thought they might develop an athlete's muscles or a new system of honest government. What do dogs know?

Well, we had our pictures taken. It took a lot of posing, almost as much posing as it might have taken for a bride in her bridal gown. That was because Ma wanted me to look pretty. Finally the photographer took one of Tige alone. That's when we had to laugh. Poor old Tige sitting there with an iron head rest behind him looked so funny we couldn't help laughing. It wasn't any laughing matter for him.

One thing about Tige I liked—when the pictures came home he didn't turn up his nose and say they didn't do him justice. He was delighted with them and wanted us to send one right off to grandma. And we did send one to her. The next letter we got from her she told how pleased she was with our pictures and how they missed me and dear old Tige.

BOSTON AMERICAN, SUNDAY, JUNE 3, 1903.

June--THE MONTH OF MARRIAGE

THERE are many excited hearts in the world at this moment. This is the month of weddings.

The fathers and mothers, tearful but hopeful, see their children go out into the world to carry on its most important work, THE CONTINUATION OF THE HUMAN RACE.

The young brides, full of happiness, ignorant of the world and of that deeply important work which devolves upon them, are filled with the beautiful, childish excitement of young girlhood. Their dresses, their bridesmaids, their young man's wonderful moustache or herculean proportions delight and entrance them.

The young men, soon to join the ranks of useful citizens and fathers, are nervous, excited—strange mixtures of modesty and boasting.

Little girls whose time has not yet come are twittering and fluttering. The unmarried young men at large look grand and haughty—their turn is not far off. Every good example does good work—every marriage means other marriages.

After the rice-throwing and the laughing and the weeping, to-day's bridesmaid talks for a few minutes and suddenly finds herself the engaged young girl with NEXT JUNE staring HER in the face.

The human race does not appreciate the full meaning of marriage, its preliminaries in which Nature, with wonderful wisdom, selects the best samples for survival.

All over the country you hear of wise people—usually old—with plans for bettering the race and bringing about wiser marriages. They call it "Stirpiculture." And the solemn UNITED STATES Government has recently seen submitted to its lawmakers some scheme for bettering marriage, improving conditions, etc.

But NATURE knows more about stirpiculture, more about marriage and happy homes, AND GOOD BABIES, than all the stirpiculturists and scientists in the world.

The short little girl, nervous and timid, looks out of her pretty brown eyes at the big man with the wide shoulders, big muscles and self-confidence. Art might say to you, "The woman is too little and the man is too big." Nature says to the little girl, "Marry that big man." She does it, much to the big man's delight, and the next generation is of the average size once more.

The short little man, with the big head but thin legs, looks at the statuesque tall girl, gasps, mutters to himself, "June—how lovely!" and soon he is buying furniture, starting a savings bank account, reading books on infants—again Nature keeps up the average.

The good quality in a man is discerned with unerring accuracy by a young girl who knows nothing of the world. She can pick out SINCERITY in a human being, as no stirpiculturist can do. And, what is more, SHE CAN HAND THAT SINCERITY DOWN TO THE NEXT GENERATION.

Wonderful is marriage. And wise are the laws that make it binding, that recognize man's inferiority in morals and in faithfulness to woman.

Dear readers, do you realize why we have slowly progressed until from men that cracked each other's bones to get out the marrow, that murdered their old mothers and fathers to get them out of the way, and killed one-half their children, WE HAVE DEVELOPED INTO BEINGS ALMOST CIVILIZED, almost worthy of the beautiful earth, of the marvelous future that COSMIC WISDOM gives us?

We owe this progress—almost all of it—to the selection of males, to the development of affection that precedes this wedding month of June, and that leads up to the happy marriages.

Why have men become gentler, more loyal? Because gentleness and loyalty are beautiful in the eyes of the best women. And savage men have gradually eliminated the worst traits in their character to obtain the greatest reward—THE AFFECTION OF THE GENTLEST WOMEN.

Woman in turn has been elevated by her affection for her husband, and her love of her children.

The son of the fiercest man passes his babyhood in the arms of a gentle mother. Kindness is taught him by example before he can speak. And it is whispered into his ear when first his little brain begins to learn of the world about him.

It Is the Happiest Month in the Year, the Most Hopeful Month for the Future.

Inevitably the race has improved, since the instincts of the roughest men have made them subdue themselves to please the gentle women, and since the intense mother love for children, with its mercy and self-denial, has been reflected upon every little growing child.

Young men and young women, read all that you can about the happy marriages this month. Look at the pictures of the brides, radiant and stately, of the bridegrooms, looking foolish but earnest, and realizing how unimportant they are.

Remember that during hundreds of centuries past men have lived and struggled and endured, gradually improving the world, gradually making possible the comforts, the freedom, the possibilities that you enjoy. Realize that your highest duty is to HAND ON TO THE FUTURE GENERATIONS that which has been given to you.

You will find true happiness only in marriage, in children. In the knowledge that YOU HAVE NOT BROKEN THE CHAIN which connects you with the dark past of your race and all its glorious achievements.

Don't worry about money. A good wife will multiply an ordinary man's powers by five or by ten, often making a success of mediocrity.

Don't worry too much about beauty. Character, spirit, EARNESTNESS above all, are the qualities that the human race needs.

Young women, don't be too hard to persuade. Don't wait too long. Look for honesty, look for simplicity, earnestness, in young men.

All hail the beautiful month of June, its happy weddings—the hope of this world in the future.

Providence, June 3.—Ten people were killed and fifty injured, nine seriously, by the wrecking of a trolley car filled with merry excursionists coming toward this city from Crescent Park, at 1:30 o'clock this morning.

The car, an open one, was one of two specials chartered to take to their homes 150 children and a few adults, residents of the village of Thornton, in the town of Johnston, who had spent the day at the big Narragansett Bay resort.

The cars left Crescent Park at 1:20 and, with a clear track, were rushing toward this city at a speed of at least forty miles an hour.

The forward car was about 300 feet ahead of its companion when it reached the steep hill at Forrester's Corner, where there is a curve.

The cars were so great that the car left the rails and tipped over. It slid on its side for a considerable distance and parts of it were demolished. The second car was stopped in the nick of time to prevent a collision.

When the first few moments of horror and confusion were over the scene on the second car, assisted by engineers on the first who were uninjured, removed the wreckage and gave aid to the injured.

Five girls and two men were taken from under the car dead. Others were in a dying condition. Three more died soon after, two on the scene and one at the Rhode Island Hospital. The injured included more than fifty others, and the doctors who were summoned from this city and East Providence found nine of them so seriously hurt that their recovery was doubtful.

Naco, Ariz., June 3. While reports gave out as the number of the battle between the Mexican and American soldiers in the Mexican mining town of Naco, which yesterday and today was swept with riot and bloodshed, later reports from Colonel W. It is possible that further dispatches will increase this number, but it is now known that the Mexicans suffered more severely in the fighting.

Iron Bar Before "Death Cell" Denies Tucker a Mother's Kiss

DIAGRAM SHOWING ROUTE TUCKER WILL TAKE FROM CELL TO DEATH CHAIR.

Developments of Tucker's First Day in "Death House"

A NEW and unbiased witness is discovered who can identify the Canadian stipendiary as having belonged to Tucker in 1902, two years before the murder.

Another witness is willing to swear that one day, a few weeks after the Page murder, a little child, the daughter of a Weston company, showed him a stipendiary which she told him had been presented to her by Amy Roberts, at the Page house.

Attaches of Governor Guild's office, fearful of cranks, establish a strict guard over the outer door. The stipendiary denied the intimations made by Rev. Mr. Bishop.

A bar is erected before the grating of Tucker's cell, which will prevent his visitors from touching him. Even his mother cannot kiss him again.

Tucker's father, under nervous strain, appears to be on the verge of a collapse, and Mrs. Tucker is too ill to visit her son in his cell. The condemned youth passed the day quietly and almost cheerfully, reading, smoking and conversing with his guard. In the afternoon he expressed confidence that his sentence would be commuted by Governor Guild.

Iron Railing May Prevent Mother from Ever Embracing Son Again.

Additional new evidence, which his attorneys feel confident will prove of great value in saving Charles L. Tucker from the electric chair, was discovered late yesterday.

Late last night an additional guard was placed outside the death house at the Charlestown State Prison. It is supposed this was done for fear that some sympathetic and excited person, believing in Tucker's innocence and lacking hope in executive action, might attempt some desperate measure to secure the prisoner's release.

Threatening letters have been received by high officials and it has been deemed possible that an attack might be made to attack Wanda Brakes, to break into the death chamber, or even to wreck the death house by an explosion.

Wanda Brakes' action in thus strengthening the defenses of his prison indicated that he planned to be prepared for any of the persons who have threatened to see that Tucker shall not die in the electric chair from making good his wild promises.

The new evidence which was discovered yesterday is regarded by Tucker's counsel as of great importance.

Mr. T. J. Burrows of Boston, who was in Auburn during 1901 and 1902, a positive that he can identify the fatal stipendiary, which Amy Roberts wore at the trial was stolen from the Weston house on the day of the murder, as one that she saw a number of times in the Weston house.

Mrs. Burrows talked with a BOSTON woman, who was in the Weston house on the day of the murder, and she told her that she saw a number of times in the Weston house.

Death Given Alive. A statement of new evidence, hardly less important, it would seem, was given yesterday by a woman, who was in the Weston house on the day of the murder, and she told her that she saw a number of times in the Weston house.

Friends of Judge W. H. H. Emmons, whose term as Police Commissioner expires tomorrow, are exerting strong influence to have him appointed to fill the vacancy of the Superior Court bench caused by the death of Judge R. D. Maynard.

The friends of the judge point to his record as a judge and as a man, and to his sacrifice in leaving the bench to go to the Superior Court.

PIONEER SEASHORE MAN LAID AT REST

UNDER WEIGHT OF HIS AGONY
FATHER'S PLASING

"WHY SHOULD FATE LAY ITS HAND SO HEAVILY UPON US?"

M. R. TUCKER, I fear, is breaking down under the nervous strain and worry over our poor boy. He has not been well since the trial, but lately it has seemed as if he were failing fast. I dread the effect upon him of the long strain. We are all hearing up as well as we can, but it is strange that fate should lay its hand so heavily on one innocent boy and his whole family?—MRS. LUCY TUCKER, mother of Charles L. Tucker.

Strain of Anxiety, It Is Feared, Is Causing Mr. Tucker to Break Down as the Date of the Execution Approaches His Condition Gives the Family Deepest Concern, as He Has Been in Poor Health Since the Trial of His Son

Albert P. Tucker, father of Charles L. Tucker, is quite ill, and Mrs. Tucker, mother of the young man, is also ill. She has been in poor health since the trial of her son, and is now in a very weak condition.

"It is due to the nervous strain and worry over our poor boy," said Mrs. Tucker, last night, in a Boston Sunday Morning reporter. "Mr. Tucker has not been well since the trial of his son, and is now in a very weak condition. He has been in poor health since the trial of his son, and is now in a very weak condition."

TUCKER DOES NOT
WEAR PRISON GARB
UNLESS COMMUTED

James H. Vaher, counsel for Charles L. Tucker, stated the young man would not wear prison garb after the trial in the Commonwealth prison. Mr. Vaher said that the young man would wear his own clothes, and that he would not wear prison garb unless the sentence was commuted.

CONVICTION OF ABBOTT
PARALLEL TO TUCKER CASE

The conviction of Thomas Abbott last night in 1-1 for the murder of Mrs. Maria True is a case which may be compared to the case of Charles L. Tucker. The two cases are very similar, and the conviction of Abbott is a parallel to the case of Tucker.

Among the many letters of approval that have been received by the Commonwealth, a copy of which was sent to the Governor and Council of Massachusetts, is one from the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, dated June 1, 1906.

BROTHER'S VISIT BRIGHTENS
FIRST DAY IN DEATH CELL

Tucker's first complete day in the death cell at Charlestown passed uneventfully. The prisoner, as soon as he was taken from the family, was taken to the death cell, and his first day was brightened by the visit of his brother.

DURING TUCKER'S LAST WEEK OF LIFE
HE MAY DO THESE THINGS:

- Read.
- Write.
- Converse with his guards.
- Receive visits from relatives, counsel and spiritual adviser between 8 a. m. and 5 p. m., every day except Sunday.
- These things are denied him.
- He cannot leave his death cell, or take any exercise, except within its confines.
- He cannot touch any person or be touched by any person. He cannot even kiss his mother goodbye.
- He cannot have a second's privacy. From now until he begins his march to the electric chair he will be under a guard's eye every minute.
- He cannot receive presents from anyone, lest they should send him poison, or means to attempt an escape.
- He cannot see the light of day, except the small amount that glimmers through high and narrow windows.

Tucker Under Death Watch, Denied Faithful Mother's Embrace

Will These Photographs Bear Weight in Saving Tucker?

This is the first photograph ever taken of the "death" This is a photograph of the other Canadian pin exhibited pin found in Tucker's pocket after the murder, and at this trial, which the Government claimed might have been like the one in Tucker's cap.

If enlargements of the small photograph of Tucker wearing his Canadian pin, in his cap should resemble the "death" pin more than the other, a strong point in his favor would be established.

FEARING CRANKS' INTRUSION
GUILD INNER GUARD

VIGILANT GUARDS PROTECT
GOV GUILD FROM ATTACK

Vigilant guards at the doors of the executive chambers at the State House protect Governor Guild from possible attack by cranks in the Tucker case. Many threatening letters have been received and the messengers are under rigid instructions not to talk about the Tucker case, unless by appointment by Governor Guild himself. All attaches have been warned to be on the alert, as no little messengers are felt.

MOTORMAN SAVES
4-YEAR-OLD BOY

By his presence of mind and quick action in applying the brakes, Motorman John Adams, of No. 123, North Street, saved the life of a four-year-old boy yesterday, when the little fellow attempted to jump the car to get to the other side of the street.

The car came to a sudden stop, and the boy was saved. The motorman's quick action saved the boy's life.

GORKY AN IMPOSSIBILITY, SAYS MME. RICHARD SAVAGE

MRS. RICHARD HENRY SAVAGE

WOMAN WHO PREDICTS DEFEAT OF RUSSIAN REBELS

Brilliant Widow of Soldier-Author Says Great Masses in Russia Are Contented.

"To read history, thinking people, Gorky is an impossibility," says Mme. Richard Henry Savage, wife of the late soldier-author and poet, John Henry Savage, and herself a brilliant Russian aristocrat in sympathy with the Russian Government.

Mme. Savage is now residing in Boston and her opinion of Gorky, of whom she speaks as "that amazing person," has been many times expressed in those musical and literary circles in which she frequents the salons of Countess de Soudan de Brinkley, whom she met in Paris.

Mme. Savage will be for a few days known as Mrs. John Henry Savage. "I can see that it is not true for the conditions that the Russian people would force upon it," she says, "but I am sure that the Russian people will not be so easily deceived as to be so easily deceived."

Mme. Savage is a woman of great intellect and a woman of great heart. She is a woman of great intellect and a woman of great heart. She is a woman of great intellect and a woman of great heart.

MARKET VERY DULL BUT PRICES ARE FIRM. SOME GAINS MADE AND MONEY IS EASIER.

By Boston American Licensed Wire.

New York, June 3.—Five years ago, just as American stocks and bonds were in a high state of excitement, the market was very dull. It was very dull and the prices were very low.

The fact that American multi-millionaires are proved guilty of such practices has already staggered the French, and there is grave doubt whether it may not cause another severe reaction against American securities in Europe.

IMMUNITY BATHS SCHEDULED FOR COMMITTEE ITSELF.

After "Fixing" Every Other
Member, Probers Will Dip
Deep in Its Waters.

INVESTIGATION TASK
NOW NEAR COMPLETION

Legislators Lay Crafty Plot to Punish Lawson and Raymond for Contempt.

LEONARD STORY WILL BE TOLD OVER AGAIN

Having administered immunity baths to the members of the House and several lobbists, the Committee on Rules, which has been investigating alleged bribery at the state house, will during the coming week go under the shower itself.

The members of the committee have hitherto assumed the post of danger, and have not attempted to render themselves immune until they had reached to the core of their delinquency.

In the proceedings the coming week the Attorney General or his assistant will ask each member of the committee the same question:

"What do you know about bribery at the state house?"

Who ever promised anyone any legislative money for your vote or any legislative favor?

For Lawson and Raymond.

It has been said that a trap has been set for George J. Raymond and William
W. Lawson, which Attorney General Manning will throw down the tracks that lead from the inside that have been set for them.

It is estimated that the committee sitings will be held in the morning and will last until the afternoon.

VOTERS TO PASS ON ISSUE OF STATEHOOD.

Referendum Provided for In Measure Agreed Upon at Washington Conference; Czar
Cannon's Rule Starts Uproar

By Boston American Leased Wire.
Washington, June 2.—The conference the statehood bill reached an agreement this afternoon on that long-contested measure, which will be called upon by the people at the next election. The main point of difference between the House and Senate, the admission of Arizona and New Mexico, and the conference has decided to leave the matter to the voters.

On a separate postal card which was found on a bureau in the little home written this note:

"I have done this myself. I don't want to be broken-hearted for the rest of my life."

The young girl, who died last month, was found by the police on the night of the murder.

She had never been a strong girl and lately she had been ill. Her death was a great loss to the family.

HOPES FOR NAPOLEON
REGIME ARE IN VAIN

Special Cable to the Boston Sunday American

By the Marquis de Castellano.

Paris, June 2. It is hardly possible to find a more complete illustration of the power of the press in the present time than the fate of the Irish Patriot. The paper, which was founded in 1843, and which for many years has been one of the most influential organs of the Irish nationalist movement, has been forced to close its doors. The reason for this is the financial crisis which has overtaken the paper. The paper's circulation has been falling steadily for some time, and its financial position has become increasingly precarious. The paper's management has been unable to raise the necessary funds to keep the paper going, and it has been forced to close its doors. The paper's closure is a great blow to the Irish nationalist movement, and it is a sad commentary on the power of the press in the present time.

There are many who are thinking that the Irish Patriot's closure is a great blow to the Irish nationalist movement. However, it is not so. The Irish nationalist movement is still very strong, and it is still very active. The Irish Patriot's closure is only a temporary setback, and it will not affect the movement's long-term goals. The Irish nationalist movement is still very strong, and it is still very active. The Irish Patriot's closure is only a temporary setback, and it will not affect the movement's long-term goals.

The two countries of the world who are most interested in the Irish Patriot's closure are the United States and France. The United States is interested because of the large number of Irish-Americans who read the paper. France is interested because of the paper's influence on the Irish nationalist movement. The paper's closure is a great blow to the Irish nationalist movement, and it is a sad commentary on the power of the press in the present time.

HARVARD TEAM BEATEN BY CORNELL

Cambridge Nine Is Defeated,
5 to 4, in an Interesting Game.

GREENE PITCHES WELL
FOR LOSING AGGREGATION

The Harvard Crimson was again trounced in the diamond yesterday afternoon, and the men to do the trick this time were the same collegians who won a splendid track victory in the stadium last week, and a day before loved the colors of the Crimson on the field. The Cornell Blue-Grays have been doing things to Harvard this year and this time caused the crimson yesterday afternoon by defeating Harvard by the score of 5 to 4 in a well-contested and clearly played contest on the part of the Harvard.

Cornell's victory was almost entirely due to the mastery pitching of Greene, who was substituted for Cornell after Harvard had jumped upon him, and his four runs, two hits and two errors in the six innings in which he pitched helped allowed him to win the game, which came when they were needed.

Greene Pitched Creditably.

Carlisle Greene pitched a creditable game for Harvard, allowing but seven hits in six innings. His team opportunity for Cornell, however, and Greene lost ground by very inept errors on the part of the team behind him. One of the bright features of the game was the manner in which New Current doubled himself behind the bat for that year. He let three Cornellians pitch on him, but he was not in the attempt. The last feature of the freshman pitcher's play was his shortness and his making two runs single. FRANKLIN SPEEDWAY RACES PROVE THE BEST OF SEASON.

By far the best racing of the season was seen on the Franklin Field speedway yesterday afternoon, and the speed contest of the day proved to be the best of the season.

Of the five events on the card none were decided in the first heat, and the number took five heats to find the winners. Thereafter the race was like a pair of horses, and it was hard to tell when the race was over.

It was rather late when the race was over, and the crowd was still large.

TWO RECENT RECRUITS TO PILGRIMS' RANK.

Leon Martell, the latest recruit in Jimmy Connors' camp, is one of the most promising backstops in the business, and made a great reputation behind the bat at Georgetown College. He has made a favorable impression practicing with the team at the Huntington grounds, and is ready to step in and do his trick with the pad and mitt.

SOMERVILLE HIGH IS CHAMPION BY BEATING MALDEN

Somerville High won its fifth consecutive championship yesterday after a hard-fought battle with Malden. The game was well played on both sides, but Somerville's superior pitching and fielding proved to be the deciding factor.

Nelson Is Willing to Meet Mexican in Ring

John Hayden, who has joined the local Americans' outfit staff, comes to the Hub with a fine record. He is spoken highly of by baseball experts as a grand slider and fast base runner. He comes from the Tri-State League and will get into the game as soon as the National Commission fixes up his status of reinstatement. He is very speedy on his feet and covers an immense amount of ground. As a batter he stands in about the 250 class, and his arm throwing is strong and accurate.

BASEBALL SENATORS BEATEN BY PILGRIMS

Even "Young Cy" Wasn't Able to Beat Dodgers In Brooklyn Game

Brooklyn, June 2.—After being triumphant yesterday in good fashion, the Boston Pilgrims of '06, the superstars should not repeat the same mistake today. They got right down to work in practice and had the fans with them before a half-dozen balls were sent to the infield. The work of the field, well, the visitors' shortstop, brought the Senators to the line and his eleven men were up to the bat. They had a very good game, the Brooklyn team walked away with the first part of the score, and they were not to be outdone. The game was a very close one, and the Pilgrims were not to be outdone. The game was a very close one, and the Pilgrims were not to be outdone.

RECENT MEET BEST HELD IN NEW ENGLAND.

Spectators Pleased and the Association Will Net a Good Sum of Money.

BY J. C. KERRISON.

The consensus of opinion of those concerned with the matter is that the recent meeting of the New England Automobile Association was by far the best managed and conducted affair of the kind that has been held in this section. This, however, was not by any means the only reason for the success of the meeting. The fact that the race committee and the race itself were well managed and conducted was also a factor in the success of the meeting. The fact that the race was well managed and conducted was also a factor in the success of the meeting.

Not a Hitch or Miss.

As a matter of fact, the race was well managed and conducted. The fact that the race was well managed and conducted was also a factor in the success of the meeting. The fact that the race was well managed and conducted was also a factor in the success of the meeting. The fact that the race was well managed and conducted was also a factor in the success of the meeting.

Watched the Steamers.

The advent of the so-called Vanderbilt steamer was awaited with considerable interest. The fact that the race was well managed and conducted was also a factor in the success of the meeting. The fact that the race was well managed and conducted was also a factor in the success of the meeting. The fact that the race was well managed and conducted was also a factor in the success of the meeting.

BIG HILL CLIMB

FORD Six Cylinder Touring Car $2,500

The Ford six cylinder car has reserve power without great weight.

Two of its cylinders alone will give power enough to run along the smooth streets of a city, yet in the country no sand, no hill, no mud, can put the whole six out of business. It is reserve power that counts.

ALL DORCHESTER TO HONOR HEROES WHO SETTLED SAVIN HILL IN 1630

WILLIAM J. HERVEY.

276th Anniversary of Founding Will Be Celebrated Saturday by the Greatest Demonstration Ever Held

Next Saturday, June 3, the 276th anniversary of the settlement of the Dorchester Historical Society will be celebrated. The society, aided by leading citizens of Dorchester, are arranging for a still greater demonstration this year. Dorchester, they really falls on the 16th, but that being Sunday will be observed on Saturday.

It was largely through the efforts of the Dorchester Historical Society that the 276th anniversary of the settlement was celebrated so successfully. The society, aided by leading citizens of Dorchester, are arranging for a still greater demonstration this year. Dorchester, they really falls on the 16th, but that being Sunday will be observed on Saturday.

BOY, SAID TO BE FIREBUG, IS FREED

Worcester, June 2.—After being in jail for more than six months awaiting trial on a charge of having set fire to the Park Theatre building on Front street, George C. Reynolds, seventeen years old, has been released from custody by order of the District Attorney.

Reynolds was arrested last November and was tried at the January term. The jury failed to agree and Reynolds went to jail. Although only a boy, Reynolds, who is now in the hands of his mother, is set free.

VISION OF DYING GIRL WAS TRUE

Keystone, N. D., June 2.—Although unaware of the fact that her father was in the city and lying on his deathbed, a young girl, Leta Kendall, the seventeen-year-old daughter of S. H. Kendall of this city, saw in a vision the accident which occurred to her father.

Miss Kendall was in attendance at the school at Wadena when she was taken seriously ill with rheumatism of the heart, and her father went to that city in order to be near her. The school is on the bluff above the town, and while climbing the hill Mr. Kendall, being unfamiliar with the place, missed his footing and slipped, falling thirty feet to the gorge below.

That night his daughter, still unaware of the fact, had visions of her father's death. She described seeing to her J. H. Neff, the attending physician, the widow, who had been his father-in-law, and the girl who had been his daughter. The girl died that evening, Kendall is now in the city, and it is hoped that her father's vision was true.

PARENTS TO FIGHT FOR GIRL OF 14

Worcester, June 2.—George H. Hill of Detroit, Mich., is to contest the petition for the custody of their minor child, a girl named Ella L. Hill, now of Boston, for the custody of their minor child, who has been without guardians since the granting of a divorce to the father in August, 1907. Mr. Hill has retained counsel and has filed a cross petition for the custody of the girl, who has grown from twelve or thirteen to a young lady of sixteen or seventeen.

The matter has been assigned for hearing at the court, which will sit for the second Monday of June and a strenuous contest is anticipated. The father, George H. Hill, has retained counsel and has filed a cross petition for the custody of the girl, who has grown from twelve or thirteen to a young lady of sixteen or seventeen.

ASK DISBARMENT OF "ABE" HUMMEL

New York, June 2.—Proceedings have been begun before the Bar Association for the disbarment of Attorney Abraham H. Hummel and two of his partners, Nathan Cohen and Abraham H. Koffenbach, on account of disclosures growing out of the Debs-Morse case. Hummel has already been subjected to excommunication. A trial of the case for disbarment of Hummel has been postponed while the appeal of the appellate division from his conviction is pending.

LOST MONEY IN BANK; INSANE

Providence, June 2.—Having crazy from months of brooding over the fact that he has about $7,000 in the defunct Fourth National Bank, Captain W. H. Allen, one of the oldest and best known residents of this city, is confined in the county jail, a mental case.

SUICIDE ON WEDDING EVE

Norwalk City, Neb., June 2.—C. H. Hill, a 35-year-old man, was found dead in his room on Wednesday evening. He had been married on Tuesday evening to Miss Mae Clinkenberg of Lincoln.

COTTON MILL HANDS HOPE FOR ADVANCE

Providence, June 2.—Rhode Island's 20,000 cotton operatives are deeply interested in the horizontal advance in wages which will take effect in the cotton mills of Eastern Connecticut next Monday.

Some mill owners in this State say the Connecticut mills are, as a rule, engaged on finer grades of goods than the Rhode Island mills, and that competition is, therefore, less keen than it is on the coarser grades made in this State. But quite a number of the big cotton mills in the Connecticut and Pawtucket valleys make the finest cotton goods on the market, and it is to these mill owners that the Rhode Island operatives are looking for immediate action in wage escalations.

SUE POLICE CHIEF

Providence, June 2.—Two suits with $8,000 damages have been filed in the United States Circuit Court against Police Commissioner Lewis J. Pines, Jr. of this city. The suits are for damages to the person and property of the plaintiffs, who were injured by the police on April 17, 1905.
